

Access to coaching support for your staff

COURSE OVERVIEW

These are anxious times and all staff are facing challenges adapting to their new circumstances. They may find homeworking frustrating, be worried about family members or feel isolated.

Our coaches are available for all members of your school staff. They can offer an expert listening ear, reassurance through troubled times and strategies for building personal resilience and coping with change.*

Sometimes staff feel more able to offload to someone outside the school community in a confidential setting, whereas they won't lean on colleagues who are stressed themselves.

Schools can provide access to coaching support for all their staff by creating a pool of coaching hours – say, 20 hours of coaching to be shared by 20 teachers and staff. Some will need more hours and others won't call on coaching support.

Note that this is coaching, not a counseling service.*

KEY FEATURES

All staff will be given free log-in access to our coaching platform in order to book in coaching directly.

Your school has 12 months to use up your coaching hours – so there is plenty of opportunity to redirect the coaching to provide personal leadership development following the coronavirus crisis.

We monitor usage of your coaching pool hours, can restrict individuals' entitlements to a maximum you set, and can report on engagement.
